Weather Forecasts for August.

The following are the weather forecasts as observed by Rev. Irl R. Hicks and published in the Word and Works:

The whole month of August will feel more or less the influence of the equinox of the planet Mars. The Mars disturbance is central on the 20th, extending from the last of July well into September. We have frequently referred to the fact that the Mars influence always tends to fix and perpetuate any weather conditions that may exist at the time of entering his equinoctial period. If at the entrance of a Mars period it is dry and warm, it is safe to say that the same kind of weather will largely predominate until his period is passed. If we come well into a Mars period with tendency to wet and stormy weather, look for a predominance of such weather for several weeks. And so, through all the seasons of the year it is a proven fact that the kind of phenomena prevailing at the beginning of a Mars period, is almost sure to be prolonged during the life of that period. The regular storm period will not be obliterated, but the disturbance at these regular times will be modified or aggravated in the direction of existing conditions when the Mars period is entered. Hence, if the present case is not an exception to the rule, we may expect in the main, the kind of weather existing the last week in July, throughout August and into September. Regular storm disturbances will be due from the 1st to the 4th of August. The probabilities are that the natural warmth to be expected at this season will grow into a crisis of summer heat about the 1st, 2d and 3d, to be followed progressively from the west by low barometer, threatening clouds and severe blustering. Local rains—some of them quite heavy—may attend these storms, but the general supply and diffusion of rains over the country promise to be short and poorly distributed. Rising barometer and change to more pleasant conditions for a few days will be natural behind the perturbations at this time, extending eastward over the country by the 4th and 5th. The reactionary storm period exists on the 6th, 7th and 8th during which days look for increase of warmth, falling barometer and marked tendency to black clouds, thunder and storminess. These disturbances will culminate on and touching the 8th some central to northern parts being visited by severe summer squalls. Change to rising barometer, westerly winds and cooler weather will press in from the west and north as low barometer and storms move eastwardly out of the way bringing partial respite from summer heat for two or three days. One of the "located terms" of the month will appear from about the 11th to the 16th. At the beginning of this period the warm wave will start in western sections, attended by low and falling barometer; easterly to southerly winds will increase the heat over all sections east of the actual storm centers. As the low barometer moves eastward, threatening clouds with severe local storms will visit many sections with favorable conditions for some generous mid-summer rains. A Mercury disturbance is also central near the center of this regular storm period. This greatly increases the probability of rain from about the 11th to the 16th. While the heat wave and storms are still passing central and east parts of the country, change to cooler will be advancing from the west and north, so that by the 15th and 16th most parts of the country will have felt the change to cooler weather. Be members this, and be able to answer according to their folly, those who say, "Hicks said it would be red hot everywhere from the 11th to the 16th." There will be perceptible reaction to rising temperature, falling barometer, and return to cloudiness and storms on and touching the 17th and 18th, followed by another return to cooler, more pleasant weather about the 19th to 21st. If the perturbations of the Mars period, to be central on the 20th, take on the nature of violent atmospheric dispositions—a result rather to be expected—the regular storm period extending from the 21st to the 27th will develop some violent and dangerous West India storms. The situation will be more critical from the fact that the moon is in perigee on the 21st, new on the 22d and on the celestial equator on the 24th. The Earth will also have entered its autumnal equinoctial at this time. We do not hesitate to warn those who live along coasts and on the seas and islands directly exposed to the fury of West India hurricanes and cyclones, of the possibilities of such visitations at this time. Such storms always follow after days of unmistakable indications, and those who do not look for indications and heed them, if they appear about this time, may have to pay a heavy penalty. We do not affirm that such disturbances must and will appear at this time, but we do say that they are possible and probable. Of course this character of storms are not to be so much dreaded except on the southern coasts and along maritime paths naturally followed by these great equinoctial cyclones. General storm conditions will develop over the country, and inland storms of more or less intensity may reasonably be expected about the 24th to 27th. If equatorial storms appear in the south at this time reaching regions as far north as our extreme southern states phenominally cool weather will follow the storms over all central to northwestern states. Such results need not be a surprise to our readers. The 29th and 30th will bring a reaction to storm conditions and more or less storminess and rain will result in many localities. Rising barometer and change to cooler weather generally, will mark the closing hours of the month.
